BRAND OF SWISS MILKS.

ALWAYS KEPT IN STOCK.

PACKING OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

SWEETENED AND UNSWEETENED.

All Full Cream, Guaranteed Absolutely Pure. Reprint from 'The Lancet,' September 14th, 1991:-We have previously reported upon a sample of condensed milk prepared by the Swiss Milk Society which, unlike the present sample, contained no added sugar. There is no doubt that the addition of sugar to condensed milk is in most cases excessive. On the contrary, when this preparation is diluted to a desirable strength by adding, for example, three parts of water to one part of milk there is hardly any sweet taste of added sugar perceptible. The preparation is quite fluid, and does not crystallise. The milk is sterile, and contains no chemical preservatives. The flavor is good, and typical of rich grass milk."

This is the finest and purest milk to be had, and is most suitable for invalids and children; it is without that objectionable taste that most condensed milks have. Price (Sweetened) ...

'THE MASTERY OF THE PACIFIC.

The following editorial comments upon Mr A. R. Colquhoun's new book are taken from The Standard :--Mr Colquhoun's reputation as a traveller in Eastern countries, and an agreeable writer about them, will secure attention for his 'Mastery of the Pacific,' published to-day by Mr Heinemann. The title, according to a very widely spread custom, seems to have been chosen rather with a view to attracting notice than as descriptive of the contents. Mr Colqubour gives us a sketch of the history of European Settlements in the Pacific, and some account of their present condition. The 'mastery' only appears on Mr Colquhoun's pages in the shape of expressions of his speculative opinion that the Pacitic will be the scene of the great conflict of the Twentieth Century, 2129 and in guessees at the future of existing European possessions. Matter of this kind, though it lends itself to rhotorical treatment, is less profitable than wellinformed reports on the condition of the countries, or even historical narratives. Mr Colquioun, by the way, is not strong on THIS HOTEL is situated in a quiet this side of his work. Even in a rapid survey of the conflicts of Europeans in the Pacific and the Indian Ocean, more room Residence. The building stands on an might have been found for the struggle between the Dutch and English East India Companies for the possession of the Spice Islands, and the decisive effect of our defeat on our Settlements in India, When we find Mr Colquhoun writing, and leaving uncorrected, a passage which shows that he con-

founds our relations to the Datch during 850 the American War of 1778-1783 with those of the Revolutionary and Napoleonic struggle of 1792-1815, we have to doubt his capacity to write history. But when he turns to contemporary occurrences and conditions -- which, it is only fair to add, form the bulk of his book-he becomes much more interesting and instructive. He deals respectively with the positions of the United Wharves, and seven minutes by | States, Great Britain, Holland, Japan, and other Powers in the Pacific. It is, of course impossible for the author to give arr exhaustive accoun of the different parts of the vast field which he covers. But he puts a comprehensive view before the reader, in which the main lines are given clearly. Some of his observations have already been Food both in European and Eastern rendered a little out of date through the rapid changes of 'political' relations, Thus the Anglo-Japanese Treaty has antiquated his opinion that Japan was left alone to face the hostility of Russia. Mr Colquboun agrees with all other witnesses in admiring the energy and espacity of the Japanese; and notes that they are curing themselves of the mere inept imitation of European ways. He speaks favourably of their administration in Formosa, where they seem to be doing well after preliminary errors. We cannot, however, quite share his estimate of the strategic value of an Island which not only possesses no harbour, but has a const on which, apparently, none can be made, Very MODERATE TERMS to FAMI. The Pescadores would give Japan all she wants as a haval station. Mr Colquboun's 2639 | chapters on the Dutch Colonies confirm the reports of other authorities. Holland has certainly been, in a way, successful with Java. and it is in the last degree doubtful whether any change would be for the advantage of the natives. The danger for her comes from the increasing proportion of creolesdescendants of Dutchmen who settle and raise families in the Island, losing all touch with the Mother Country. If we are to judge from the chapter on the policy of the Americans in the Philippines, they are pre-paring a disappointment for themselves, and, with the best intentions in the world, are likely to do no real good to the Filipinus. Their attempt to induce a mixed Asiatic population to think and act like white men is doomed to failure, as they will certainly CHOPS, STEAKS, etc., etc., at any time, between 7.30 s.m. and 11 Colonies with Government of Sainten and Colonies with Government and Colonies with Government and Colonies with Government and Colonies with France does nothing else, Germany is both pushing and successful in commerce. The chapters devoted to our own Colonies give a convenient summary of facts, but, per-haps because Mr Colquboun's space does not allow of more, his expositions are un-1787 satisfactorily brief. We could wish, for instance, that he had shown at greaters length why he says that too much importance has been attached to the readiness of Australia to give help to the Mother Country in South Africa.

AM writing personally to say how much I have benefited by taking your Steams' Wine of Cod Liver Oil, it is so nice to take, tasting just like Port, is easily digested and leaves no unpleasant taste, which ordinary Cod Liver Oil docs. I have become much stouter, and bad coughs, which were my constant trouble, have quite ceased. I think your preparation wonderful in its work, and everywhere I go shall not fail to recommend it.

Yours faithfully,

DRESS IN ENGLISH PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

If ever a boy deserves to be eccamiserated, it is when he is removed from one public school to another in the middle of his scholastic career (says the writer of an article in Chama). Something of this kind happened to Sir Redvers Buller, who was transferred from Harrow to Eton; and it is not improbable that he remembers to this day the perplexity and pain he seffered in unlearning at his second school all that had been drilled into him concerning clothing at that on the bill. For at no two colleges are the sumpainty loss is organds dress slike, and in every one the slightest offence against them is treated as a deadly sin. Of course, there are general rules touching dress; but these are subject to many exceptions. Black coats or jackets are compulsory at most schools, and the tie must a'so he sable bue, though at Marlborough dark blue (Oxford), without any admixture of white or other colour, is allowed, at Charterhouse the Sixth Form are distinguished by a white tie. At Hayleybury, however, all boys wear black or dark blue jackets and black ties. In hats a little more latitude is allowed. While Westminsters are ubliged to wear a silk | Wur is a little dog's tail like the heart of a 'topper,' Harrovians are erowned with straw, and the same cool headgear is worn at Hayleybury on Sunday all the year. round, though the Sixth can sport a wear a white ribbon on their straw hats, | the other is soft down. and a further privilege granted to them is the currying of a walking stick. At Shrewshury preposters are marked in like termaer, having the right to wear a tall hat on Sunday as well as carrying asswelking-stick. Carthusians can give scope to their sancy between round and straw hats. In bygone years there was an extraordinary rule at Rugby with regard to headgear. It was that during his first term a boy should always an improvised football ready for a little practice in the houses where the newcomer's 'toppor' was kicked about its very maker could not have recognised it. But this absurd emictment was abolished some years back. In regard to other articles of dress there are few restrictions, at all events by the authorities, though in some cases school tradition is very exacting. At. Harrow, for instance, a number of things are forhidden as coming under the head of 'swagger,' While, however, some of these are permissible for " three-yearers," they are illegal for new boys, who soon find themselves in hot water if they venture to follow the example set by their elders. A youngster goes out in the wet and turns up his trousers. Later, when the rain stops, he carries his umbrella by the middle. Again he is swaggering. So he is, too, if he rolls it up. In his dress he is at all time compelled to be severely plain. Coats with silk facings, bow ties, tie pins, patent leather boots, buttonholes, double-breasted or other 'fancy' waistcoats-all vanities are swagger. The University Boat Race.

The Cantaba' victory in the interuniversity boat race on the 22nd alt, was the easiest imaginable and more than justified the expert opinions on the merits of the crew. The weather was showery with a south-west breeze. Cambridge, winning the toss, chose the Surrey side, and immediately took the lead, rowing 38 to the Oxomans' 36. The gap steadily increased until at the Soapworks two lengths divided the bosts. The Oxford stroke made the effort of the race and reduced the lead at Hammersmith Bridge to one length. But the Dark Blues were umble to maintain the pace, and the race was now practically over. Cambridge drew steadily ahead and there was a gap of four lengths at Chiswick, and 45 at Barnes Bridge, while the Light Blues paddled home the winners by five lengths. The official time was 19 min. 9 secs. It was, by common consent, the tamest boat race for many years. - In the University Sports on the previous day, Oxford heat Cambridge by winning 5 events to 4.

Insurance Rates in China.

A writer in the Shanghai Mercury says :- Amongst the many things for which Shanghai pays through the nose it cannot be denied that fire insurance is one. At home to insure an ordinary dwelling house costs eighteen pancy per cent ; here we pay five shillings, with some small reduction in the premium itself. Why this difference? Everything is in favour of the insurance company in Shanghai as against that in England. Here there are six months of the year in which there are no fires at all in our houses-May to October, both inclusive- whereas there is no month without fires in the English house. Then again houses in Shanghai are much more frequently detached than they are in England, an additional safeguard. It would appear therefore that we are paying some three times the amount we ought to pay for the benefit of protection from fire. I am aware of the fact that home offices do not care very much for the house business, as being hardly remunerative enough, but I also know that there are insurance men Shanghai who know what I know, and are not ufraid to say it, and that is that the foreign community here is being bled, to provide big dividends for shareholders. The profits of the local companies are enormous. So big are they that the Chinese are beginning to make arrangements for cutting, into them on their own account, and as soon as that is done there will be a big drop in the rates. Don't the foreign companies see that it would be better for them to take the initiative and stave off dangerous competition before it is too late?

The Steam Boller.

What came over the steam road roller this morning? writes a correspondent under Saturday's date. It appears as if an attempt had been made to engineer it down Possession Street, where the declivity is rather steep. The result seems to have been disastrous, for the engine is now lying who has taken over the command in Ceylon, in a heap not far from the top of the thoroughfare, the ponderous steering gear and castings being broken to pieces. The damage to the engine cannot be loss than $600 or $700. It is difficult to comprehend the object of taking such an unwieldy piece of machinery down such a steep and busy thoroughfare, where a slight want of skill in its landling might have led to very serious damage to property and loss of life.
